All worksheet names are displayed in the pop-up list. We regret being unable to individually answer all submitted questions. (Note: The workbook must be saved as an Excel Macro-Enabled Workbook file type in order to retain the Defined Name formula.) Now that you have successfully added a table of contents to your workbook, I recommend you add hyperlinks as well, to aid navigation. I have an Excel workbook with dozens of custom-named worksheets. These formulas will return a list of the names of your worksheet tabs in the same order as your worksheet tabs. Send them toA Ajofatech@aicpa.org. Right-click the text box to select it, press Ctrl+K to launch the Insert Hyperlink dialog box, select Place in This Document (under the Link to menu), scroll down to Defined Names, select TOC, and press OK. To jump to a certain sheet, select the sheeteAAAs name (e.g., Sheet5), and click OK. Enter SheetNames into the Name field, enter the following formula into the Refers to field: =REPLACE(GET.WORKBOOK(1),1,FIND(")",GET.WORKBOOK(1)),""), and then select OK. This action will create a named formula that can then be used in conjunction with the INDEX function to produce a list of worksheet names. In the following example, there are 20 worksheets, but only 7 of them are displayed. Continuing, let us assume you have 25 named worksheets. Is it possible to create a list of those worksheet names in Excel without having to retype them? Carlton Collins, CPA Q. Q.
