Covenant christian academy

You're familiar with the word "partnership." You've probably seen it a dozen times as you searched websites and brochures for private schools in the Dallas/Fort Worth area. But have you heard it defined lately? And what exactly does it mean to you? At Covenant Christian Academy, we want to be clear about what we mean when we say partnership. We want families considering Covenant Christian Academy to know how we work together with parents and students toward common goals. So, what does a successful educational partnership at CCA look like? Our Portrait of a Partnership outlines the seven mutual commitments between the home and school. We partner with families who ground their lives in Christian principles and teachings. At CCA, we believe that having at least one parent who is a confessing Christian and actively involved in a Bible-believing church, strengthens the foundation for your child's spiritual growth. We value your participation in faith-based activities and family prayers as part of our shared commitment to nurturing a Christ-centered life. Covenant Christian's commitment: A biblical worldview integrated into every subject, class, program, and event Faculty and staff who are committed Christians, encouraging students to grow in faith A formal character development program that helps foster an environment where students feel safe and confident Parents who approach interactions with grace, especially during challenging situations, create a positive atmosphere at CCA. This allows for constructive communication with school staff, thoughtful conflict resolution, and the opportunity to model empathy, collaboration, and respect for authority. Covenant Christian's commitment: Clear and open communication between the school and home Plenty of opportunities to voice your thoughts and perspectives A willingness to listen and understand A focus on finding solutions that work for your child and your family At CCA, we welcome families who encourage their children to undertake grade-appropriate work, pursue their academic potential, and ask for help and accommodations as needed. Students who are well-supported by their families bring a dynamic energy to our school and thrive in our challenging yet supportive academic environment. Covenant Christian's commitment: Pre-K-12 education with college in mind Programs to support students with mild learning differences Help in discovering and cultivating God-given talents Ability to explore athletics and arts for all students so they can learn the basics and decide if there is further interest Want to discover how these shared commitments come to life in our school? As you consider Christian schools in Colleyville, TX, and the surrounding Dallas/Fort Worth communities, we invite you to schedule a tour today and see firsthand if Covenant Christian Academy is the right fit for your family. We partner with families who appreciate or are open to learning about the classical education model, recognizing its value in developing critical thinking and effective communication. At CCA, we value your engagement with resources to better understand our teaching philosophy and your support for your child's participation in CCA's classical learning model. Covenant Christian's commitment: Provide resources to help families better understand the classical approach Offer additional support to students who transfer from non-classical schools Communicate clearly and eagerly answering questions We had an incredible experience interacting with the CCA community during the admissions interview process. From Skylar's shadow day in Elementary school, where she felt welcomed by her peers, to the faculty and staff going out of their way to make her feel at home, everyone was kind and helpful in every way. The school's patience in answering our questions, addressing our concerns, and their purposeful implementation of educational and spiritual principles truly stood out. What touched us the most was how the school wasn't just selling itself; they were guiding, praying, and encouraging us to seek God's plan for our family. The community's dedication to a common goal left a lasting impression on us. We were thoroughly impressed with how well the communication was handled. The detailed process of admittance and the welcome gift made for an incredible experience. Through and through, we are excited to be a part of the CCA community." We believe in the power of community and the importance of being engaged. To that end, we value your participation in school events, your willingness to volunteer for activities, and your encouragement for your children to get involved in school and community initiatives. Covenant Christian's commitment: Offer a wide range of opportunities for parents and students to get involved Foster a positive, supportive culture Establish a legacy of important school traditions As you search for the best Colleyville private schools, we're here to answer any questions you have. Feel free to reach out to Steve Turner, our Admissions Director, at (817) 281-4333 or ccainfo@covenantchristian.net. We partner with families who are prepared to meet the financial commitments of tuition and, where feasible, support the school's broader needs. At CCA, we believe in the importance of valuing and investing in quality Christian education. We appreciate your timely fulfillment of tuition and other financial obligations, your understanding of the cost involved, and your willingness to participate in fundraising or other financial support activities. Covenant Christian's commitment: Devotion to upholding Christian values and principles Exceptional programs and state-of-the-art facilities Dedicated faculty and staff focused on ongoing growth Responsible management of the school's resources Accessibility to tuition assistance for eligible families We appreciate students who exhibit an open and positive attitude toward learning. At CCA, our families encourage curiosity, adaptability, resilience in the face of academic challenges, and embracing new experiences. This mindset fosters a love for learning and the pursuit of knowledge. Covenant Christian's commitment: Provide a diverse range of academic, extracurricular, leadership, and ministry opportunities Create a culture of engagement, where students actively participate and step beyond their comfort zones Ensure top-notch spaces and resources for our students Equip faculty and staff with the tools and training needed for student success Take the next step and schedule a visit. We would love to meet you and your family! SALUTE TO SENIORS: Alexandra Pintone has decided to attend Endicott College in Beverly in the fall. She will major in Psychology and minor in Art Therapy. Alexandra received the Presidential Academic Scholarship and the Incentive Scholarship. She is one of 7 distinguished seniors this year who will complete the full 13-year Classical Education program at CCA. Congratulations, Alexandra! #ccaclassof2025 #ccapeabody #SaluteToSeniors #endicott ... See MoreSee Less 1 day ago On behalf of all our faculty and staff, we would like to extend a sincere thank you to The Parent Connection Team for the planning and execution of Teacher Appreciation Week, and to everyone who contributed. From the words of affirmation and appreciation to ALL the food each day—thank you for filling our cups and making us feel loved. #ccapeabody #teacherappreciationweek #parentconnection #thankyou ... See MoreSee Less 1 day ago As a parent, you always want what's best for your child — especially when it comes to their education and their relationship with God. You'll find both a rigorous, time-tested curriculum and dedicated teachers who encourage a biblical worldview at Covenant Christian Academy in the Dallas/Fort Worth metro area. Through our classical, Christian approach, your child will: Think critically and be able to articulate their beliefs Use classic literature and primary resources to build an unshakable faith and a love of learning Study logic, Latin, and the art of rhetoric so they can confidently lead themselves and others In the classical model, the curriculum aligns with your child's natural development. For example, in the younger years, your child naturally absorbs and repeats information. We use that time to build a foundation of all the core knowledge they will need in middle school. We call this stage grammar. As your middle schooler begins to question and become more independent, they'll piece together what they already know and learn how to research and think through deeper ideas and concepts. This stage is called logic. Finally, as your teen grows in wisdom, they'll start to effectively articulate ideas and arguments. They'll practice persuading and leading. This is the rhetoric stage. At Covenant Christian, our teachers are experts in classical education and in their fields of study. Thanks to our school serving students in PreK through 12th grade, those same teachers invest in your child's education for years. They might teach your child phonics, pray with them in middle school, and read their college essays. I love doing Bible in my classroom. We get to sing songs like "Jesus Loves Me." I really like that we get to learn about God every day of the week, not just at church! Olivia LEARN MORE ABOUT PRE-K SCHOOL I am learning to read this year and like going to the library with my class! I also enjoy being challenged in math. Ms. Chapman helps us understand with hands-on activities. Nate LEARN MORE ABOUT Kindergarten We especially love dropping off our youngest sister in the Early Childhood hallway in the morning. We get to say hi to all of our old teachers we have had since Pre-K3 as we walk through the building to our classes. We can't imagine going to any other school because we feel so safe here and love the class sizes being small. It feels like home. Audrey & Claire LEARN MORE ABOUT Elementary SCHOOL I participate in musical theater, cross country, soccer, track, and choir. It's great that I have so much opportunity. I love that Covenant is big enough that the teams and competition are strong, while small enough that I can tryout for football next year! If I want to play an additional sport. If I were at a public school, I would have to choose something before knowing what I am most passionate about. David LEARN MORE ABOUT Middle SCHOOL CCA has allowed me the ability to try my hand at a variety of opportunities including academics, athletics, music, leadership roles, and more. These opportunities have aided me in charting out my next steps in life, specifically in preparation for college, and guided me in the discovery of my truest identity in Christ. Grace LEARN MORE ABOUT High SCHOOL We'll help you get all of your questions answered. You see your child as more than a student—and so do we. Our college-prep curriculum is designed to not only get our graduates into a university or career but also prepare them for the entire life that God has in store for them. That's why we include your child's spiritual, social, and physical well-being as part of their education. We offer everything from championship-winning athletics and a well-respected fine arts program to clubs, modern extracurriculars, and even a house system that unites our student body and provides leadership opportunities. Your child's emotional safety is prioritized by intentionally limiting class sizes and teaching how to have healthy, Christ-like relationships. And we strive to live out our statement of faith in every class, every chapel, and every interaction. Over the last several years, there have been countless times that my adult children have commented about how their experience at CCA has influenced their lives- from confidence in giving presentations, appreciating famous works of art, and the ability to approach difficult topics critically. Not only were they more than prepared for their college education, they were encouraged in their Christian faith journey and we couldn't be more proud of the people they have become." - Leslie Jennings, CCA Alumni Parent We would love to meet you and show your family around the campus of one of the top Christian schools in the Dallas/Fort Worth area. Your student will benefit from an exemplary Fine Arts program that is comprehensive and diverse with offerings in both the visual and performing arts. Because we are a Christian school, we recognize that God is the Creator of all things. And, because we are God's creatures, made in His image, He made us to be creative beings. In fact, we delight in creating. We transcend simply being told what God is like — into actually experiencing a small part of who He is. It is an act of worship. Students bring glory and honor to God through their music and musical choices. Students develop their artistic talents, enhance their sense of self-esteem, and create joy and beauty for themselves and the community to enjoy Students learn the basic elements of theater, public speaking and expression. Students learn photography and graphic design techniques as well as how to storyboard, produce, and edit video content for our school community. By exercising our God-given creative gifts, we commune with God in a very special way. By developing skills in music, art, and spoken word, we are able to give expression to our faith and relationship with God on a much deeper level. Further, the development of artistic talents can be used to glorify Him and to bring others to know Him. Our desire is that our students' understanding of the great works of art integrate with their understanding of all the other disciplines they study while at CCA. In this way, when our students graduate they will be well-equipped to participate in the "Great Conversation," and to enjoy a lifetime of artistic appreciation and expression. Visit our campus during school hours. Meet faculty, staff, and students and enjoy a tour of our classrooms. Get a first hand look inside our vibrant learning community. It may be hard to remember a time when your son or daughter wasn't running or chasing a ball of some sort. By this point, athletics is a significant part of their lives — and we believe it should be a routine part of their education, too. In fact, we believe sports are important enough to be co-curricular at Covenant Christian because they teach lessons in character, perseverance, and teamwork. They help develop your teen into who God wants them to be, and there's no higher calling than that. With those lessons in mind, we encourage your student to play more than one sport — and we make it easy to do so Provide state-of-the-art facilities so your son or daughter can reach their full potential Hire talented coaches with strong networks to get the attention of college recruiters It's this God-honoring approach that has helped us become one of the top Christian high school sports programs in the Dallas/Fort Worth area. We affirm that the Bible should shape all education. We teach our students that no area of life can be separated from God, and that no fact can be understood apart from God's revelation. In light of these truths, our task is to interpret life and all of creation from the viewpoint of the Bible. In so doing, we learn to think God's thoughts after Him. We are devoted to assisting parents as they rear their children "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord!" At the start of every school year, many of us document what our children want to be when they grow up. Maybe the first year you write veterinarian on the chalkboard photo prop. The next year, it could be a teacher or an astronaut. For most kids, what they want to be is always changing. That's why at Covenant Christian Academy we partner with Christian families to offer a truly well-rounded education — an education that inspires. A love of learning. An understanding of research, problem-solving, and critical thinking. A commitment to serving God and becoming who He created them to be. With this kind of time-tested education, your child is prepared for whatever the future may hold. We've been teaching students for more than 40 years at our private Christian school in Colleyville, near Dallas and Fort Worth. And we're looking forward to telling you more about the advantages of a Classical education and sharing stories of how our graduates stand out for all the right reasons. At Covenant Christian Academy, we use a curriculum that draws from the best artists and thinkers of the past to help your child prepare academically and spiritually for the modern-day world. Thanks, in part, to this well-designed curriculum, we're accredited by the Association of Classical Christian Schools and the Association of Christian Teachers and Schools. In the classical model, the elementary years are considered foundational — a season in which children are naturally inclined to absorb information. Your child will grow in the core knowledge they need to advance to the next phase in middle school, where they will wrestle with deeper ideas and concepts. Then, they progress to high school, where they grow in wisdom and learn to effectively articulate arguments and ideas. We use inspiration from literature and the arts to teach an appreciation of God's truth, beauty, and goodness. We thank the Lord for everything about this school and what it has meant for our son. It pushed him to not be OK with mediocrity. Instead, he strived to be challenged and succeed. He was definitely surrounded by a lot of scholars. It's been a blessing not only for Dawson but for our entire family. We give God the glory for allowing him to be all he could be and then some. Thanks to the CCA teachers, staff, administration, and coaches for being exactly what he needed to succeed!" - Robin Bronsaham, CCA Alum Parent One of the ways CCA helps foster a heart of grace in our students is to first communicate God's heart of grace towards us. One of the truths we turn to again and again in our weekly chapel services is the promise in Ephesians 2:8, "For it is by grace you have been saved, through faith — and this is not from yourselves, it is the gift of God.' As believers, it starts with truly understanding and receiving the gift of God's grace over ourselves, and then we are fully able to extend a heart of grace toward each other." - Tricia Lewis, CCA Staff CCA has taught me, in each interaction with others, whether peer or teacher, kindness and respect are always the answer. I have learned how to serve as Jesus did by humbling myself and giving others my effort and energy." - Stone Kruse, CCA Student, Class of 2025 Covenant Christian Academy (CCA) is a K-12 University-Model® school located in Warrenton, VA. Founded in 2007, the school offers a rigorous Christian education to families in Northern Virginia. Covenant serves over 393 students and pursues excellence in academic, social, and spiritual student development. As a certified member of the University-Model® Schools International (UMSI), CCA offers a unique educational model that combines the best of traditional education with an exceptionally strong partnership between the school and the home. Students attend classes on campus in the central classroom three days a week and continue their studies in the home-based satellite classroom on alternate days. Professional teachers assign and assess satellite work on a regular basis. Low student-teacher ratio allows for greater instructional effectiveness and better use of classroom time. Satellite classroom study is monitored and proctored by parents who foster incrementally greater independence and responsibility in the later school years. Parents work under the supervision and guidance of the professional educator (classroom teacher) who provides direct instruction in the central classroom. University-Model® students are well-prepared to responsibly manage the rigors of a college schedule, curriculum, and expectations.
