Local guide south korea.

We have heard much about North Korea's nuclear threat, and how Kim Dynasty has declared war against the United States. But how much do we really know about what happens in that country? The Hermitage Kingdom is notoriously secret about its internal affairs, but here are 10 facts that we can take for granted. Cannabis is perfectly legal all the latest news in North Korea confirm what we already know: it is a repressive rule that breaks civil liberties from citizens. But there is a civil freedom that North Korea defends better than any other country: the right to get high. The United States only is on the day of this, and then only in a coron of states. North Korea has its own CalA © NDRIC system based on the birthday of its founding Father Kim Il-Sung: April 15, 1912. So while other countries are wagging war between Sä in the 21st century, Korea del North sits on the second. Many people play ACCORDions North Korean teachers in the 1990s were obliged to play accention. Why? Because this so-called à € ceinstrustá € could be taken to work in the fields, and hard work was the fate of many schoolchildren. The result is that many people can play today. They have regular elections in North Korea against two-party politics from the United States leave a lot to be desired. They do not even try to make them look righteous. Every five years, citizens receive electoral cÁ © candles with a single option. And the vote goes 100 percent to the Supreme Lader holder. They have a constitution also have a constitution that consecrates values such as freedom of expression and religion and the importance of democratic elections. As the last in North Korea goes continually to show, however, it is not worth the role that is written in. They are governed by the living deadAunque Kim Jong-a became the Supreme Lader 2011, the real leader remains Kim Il-sung. The grandfather of Kim Jong-un, founder of North Korea as a state, is considered commander-in-chief for eternity. The corpse corpse Meanwhile, Jong-un's predecessor, his father Kim Jong-Il, is preserved in a glass tomb to visit. Apparently, it's the most popular attraction in the country, says Buzzfeed.It was the home of an American defectorGeorge W. Bush included North Korea on his "axis of evil".But not all American soldiers seemed to agree. James Joseph Dresnok not only defected to the country (along with others who did the same), but also chose to stay and raise a family. "I feel at home", he once said, "I wouldn't change it for anything".North Korea is not ruled by a Communist PartyDespite its Soviet-style iconography and architecture, North Korea is not a great communist nation. Instead, it operates under the Juche ideology of communist founding father Kim Il-sung. Although it has much in common with communism as a political and economic system, it does not follow the line of the Communist Party.Pyongyang is only for the elite (a bit like New York) The capital of North Korea is forbidden to the oppressed masses. Although it is home to about three million people, Pyongyang is really only open to the healthiest and most loyal citizens. After all, it wouldn't be enough to have the sick and disgruntled lower class on display to visitors from all over the world.Half of the population lives in povertyThat's to say it gently. Of the more than 24 million citizens, about half lack basic needs such as clean water and nutritious food, Buzzfeed reports. That's a scandalous 12 million people living in the most absolute poverty. The threat of North Korea against us should not be our main concern. North Korea threatens the lives of its own people every second.
