JEDI TEMPLE COMPLEX

THE HEART AND HOME of the Jedi Order, the Jedi Temple was established on Coruscant some 4,000 years ago, after the Order moved from its original base on the planet Ossus. An ancient edifice, built and rebuilt over the millennia, the Temple fulfills several roles. It is a place of spiritual growth—a center for contemplation, meditation, and the study of the Force. It serves as a martial arts academy, training potential Jedi and honing their physical skills to the peak of perfection. It is the Order's administrative center and the headquarters for strategic planning of Jedi operations during the Clone Wars. It is a repository of knowledge, sacred and temporal, light and dark—and it is the site of the Jedi's greatest tragedy.

They say there are 5,217 levels in Coruscant, when in reality there are 5,127.[3] Full Locations states that the Delta-7 Ethereal Fairy class light interceptor was created in response to the Naboo invasion. However, in the Star Wars (2015) 26 comic set before the Naboo invasion, Delta 7 is shown. The people of Endor are believed to beHowever, Star Wars: Absolutely Everything You Need to Know previously stated that there are over 30,000,000 Ewoks. Geonosis has an estimated population of 100 million, while Star Wars: Absolutely Everything You Need to Know has a population of 100 billion. The full localization also states that Geonosis had no population during the Imperial era. This contrasts with the Star Wars Rebels episode "Ghosts of Geonosis" where Klik-Klak, the sole survivor of the Galactic Empire's sterilization of Geonosis, protects the Queen's Egg. The profile of the planet Kashyyk misuses the depiction of Dagobah. Lott Dod is said to have been present during the First Battle of Geonosis at the Archduke's Lodge in the Petranaki Arena. Although Episode II identified the Neimoidian as Dodu, the Neimoidian is believed to be Rune Haako. While Full Locations states that Naboo only has one moon, Mace Windu in Star Wars Episode II: Attack of the Clones mentions "spice miners on Naboo's moons". Thrawn: Alliances later stated that Naboo was three months old. King Ars Veruna is said to have reigned for thirteen years. However, the Shadow of the Queen later proved that the Navo monarch could only reign for no more than four years. It is said that Yoda's hut was destroyed by the torrential rains of Dagobah after Yoda's death. However, the 2015 Star Wars Ultimate Handbook previously stated that he was reclaimed by the swamps and the many creatures that Yoda befriended during his exile. When asked about this, Leland Chee replied that the information from both sources could be canon, clarifying that the cabin may have been rebuilt immediately after Yoda's death, but destroyed one hundred years later. It turns out that Yoda's lightsaber was kept in a box in Yoda's Hut in 3 ABY. However, in the Darth Vader (2017) 1 comic, the lightsaber was destroyed during a celebration of the elimination of the Jedi Order in 19 BBY. Asked by writer Charles Soule, perhapsHe built a new one he had more, or Darth Sidious built a fake to highlight something, while Lucasfilm Story Group's Matt Martin explained that they were aware but Yoda made no mistake, more than a few lightsabers in his lifetime. The discrepancy was resolved in The Book of Boba Fett episode "Chapter 6: From the Desert Comes a Stranger", where Yoda possessed another lightsaber. The book mentions that after seeing Anakin's lightsaber in Ben Kenobi's house, C-3PO's protocol programming required him to request a shutdown to protect its former owner's secret. Pablo Hidalgo confirmed that this information should have been removed from the book.[16] Media[] Edition[] Cover Gallery[] Czech Cover of Planets, Cities and Battles Appearances[] This list from space may not be complete.
